MISSION

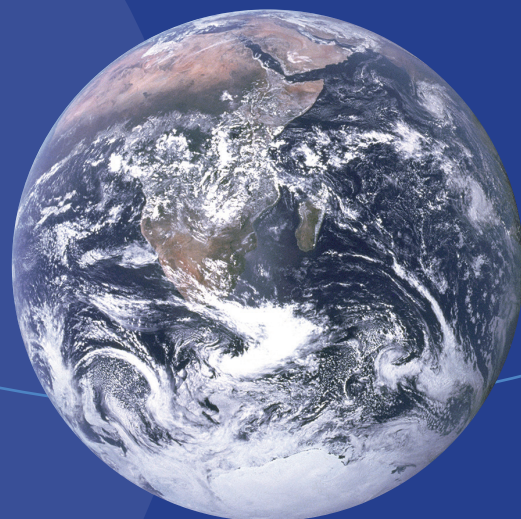

Carnegie Council works to empower ethics by identifying and addressing the most critical ethical issues of today and tomorrow.

Today, the world faces unprecedented upheaval as countries retreat from globalism, embrace nationalism, attack democratic norms, and grapple with the impact of emerging technologies on society. Carnegie Council serves as the most trusted and nonpartisan advocate for ethical solutions to the most critical issues of the day.

As an independent, research-driven nonprofit, we set the global ethical agenda and work for an ethical future by:

- IDENTIFYING current and future critical ethical issues that affect business and politics, education and journalism, religion and science, and the armed forces.
- CONVENING leading experts and thinkers to generate ethical solutions to global problems.
- CREATING communities and activating constituencies by embracing multilateralism and exploring shared values.
- FRAMING ethical perspectives by broadcasting, publishing, educating, and engaging with audiences around the world.

CARNEGIE COUNCIL:
ETHICS

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

From Ethics Matter to Ethics Empowered: A Message from the President

Dear friend of the Council,

For several years, Carnegie Council's motto has been Ethics Matter. This year, as the pandemic lingered and democracies faced new challenges, a new urgency has taken hold. In this spirit, we have adopted a new motto: Ethics Empowered.

Ethics Empowered speaks to the need for moral leadership in this moment of hyper-partisanship when expertise is doubted, and facts are a casualty of information wars.

Amid the noise of instant commentary and social media, Carnegie Council empowers ethics by identifying and addressing the most critical ethical issues of our time.

By convening leading experts, publishing agenda-setting resources, and creating communities of engagement, the Council empowers individuals and institutions to think and act in ways consistent with ethical principles.

As an institution devoted to applied ethics, the Council re-doubled its efforts this year to highlight the importance of ethical reflection in generating actionable ideas to improve public policy.

Working remotely due to pandemic restrictions, we responded to an unusually tumultuous news cycle. From the murder of George Floyd to the January 6 U.S. Capitol insurrection, the Council's programs were animated by these dramatic tests of democracy's resilience.

Among our program highlights was a four-part series titled "Protests in Perspective," co-sponsored with the Open Society University Network (OSUN), featuring discussions about the historical, philosophical, and global dimensions to the street demonstrations of 2020.

We also responded in real time to the global pandemic, featuring virtual events on vaccine development, with a special emphasis on the ethics of vaccine distribution. These activities were followed by several articles and discussions on a range of global governance challenges, highlighted by our "The United Nations at 75" podcast series, spearheaded by our Ethics & International Affairs journal.

In addition to addressing fast-moving events, Council senior fellows made great strides on their Impact Initiatives, including the Carnegie Climate Governance Initiative (C2G); the U.S. Global Engagement (USGE) initiative; the Artificial Intelligence and Equality Initiative (AIEI); and the Model International Mobility Convention (MIMC) initiative. Each in its own way is contributing to creating conditions for international cooperation in areas of dire need of new governance principles.

Board, staff, fellows, and Carnegie New Leaders (CNL) were extraordinary in their commitment during a difficult year. Paradoxically, as we all scattered to home offices and remote locations, the sense of community deepened.

Ethics Empowered begins with our community, and with our heightened sense of mission, given the current challenges to democracy, peace, health, and sustainability. With gratitude for your support and with high aspirations for the future, we look forward to your continued engagement with the Council. Together, we are empowering ethics to make a positive difference today and into the future.

Thank you for your support,

Joel H. Rosenthal
President

OUR WORK

Carnegie Climate Governance Initiative (C2G)

The Carnegie Climate Governance Initiative (C2G) seeks to catalyze the creation of effective governance for climate-altering approaches, in particular for solar radiation modification and large-scale carbon dioxide removal. Its mission will have been achieved once their governance is taken on board by governments and intergovernmental bodies, and when activities such as awareness raising, knowledge generation and sharing, and facilitating collaboration are integrated into intergovernmental organizations such as the UN. C2G is impartial regarding the potential use of specific approaches, but not on the need for their governance. C2G sees governance as more than laws, rules and regulations: it includes multiple, diverse processes, involving all sectors of society in a process of learning, discussion and decision-making. It is not C2G's role to influence the outcome of these processes, but to raise awareness of the critical governance questions that underpin approaches. For more on C2G, click here.

Artificial Intelligence & Equality (AIEI)

In 2020-21, we formalized our AIEI program, led by Senior Fellow Anja Kaspersen and Carnegie-Uehiro Fellow Wendell Wallach. This initiative asks: Can AI be deployed in ways that enhance equality, or will AI systems exacerbate existing structural inequalities and create new inequities? Over the course of the year, Kaspersen and Wallach worked to map the field, illuminate topics requiring further research, build a diverse community of experts to share their insights, and generate educational materials.

The centerpiece of AIEI's work in 2020-21 was the International Congress for the Governance of AI (ICGAI), held virtually over two sessions in March and April. Originally scheduled for spring 2020 in Prague, the virtual conference still convened many of the world's leading AI experts. The sessions focused on fostering inclusivity among all stakeholders in this emerging technology and catalyzing cooperation among business, academic, and government leaders to establish ethical guidelines for the responsible deployment of artificial intelligence. Speakers included Zlatko Lagumdžija, former prime minister of Bosnia and Herzegovina; Doris Leuthard, the former president of Switzerland; Nanjira Sambuli, a technology and governance analyst and member of the AIEI Board of Advisors; Michael Møller, former director-general of the United Nations Office at Geneva and also a member of AIEI Board of Advisors; and many more experts and policymakers.

The Artificial Intelligence & Equality podcast also started in spring 2021. This podcast debuted in May with hosts Kaspersen and Wallace discussing the history of ethics in AI in a wide-ranging talk. The next episode featured Kaspersen interviewing researchers from the University of Melbourne about how to responsibly develop AI technology.

U.S. Global Engagement (USGE)

Led by Senior Fellows Nikolas K. Gvosdev and Tatiana Serafin, USGE continued to reshape wider discussions on American foreign policy to seriously address the causes and consequences of U.S. disengagement; move ethical considerations to the center of policymakers' thinking about international relations; and inform democratic citizens' understanding of international affairs, global engagement, and U.S. foreign policymaking.

To these ends, Gvosdev and Serafin launched a bi-weekly podcast called The Doorstep in September 2020, which looks at the way that international news and geopolitical developments affect average Americans' "doorstep" concerns. Over the course of the year, the co-hosts discussed the direct aftermath of the 2020 U.S. presidential election with U.S. Naval War College's Thomas Nichols, "climate statecraft" with New York University's Carolyn Kissane, the Biden administration's foreign policy for the middle class with Politico's Nahal Toosi, the new space race with The Washington Post's Chritisan Davenport, and much more on globalization, the COVID-19 pandemic, and U.S.-China relations.

Gvosdev and Serafin also started their Book Talk series in March 2020, speaking with authors Admiral James Stavridis and Elliot Ackerman about 2034: A Novel of the Next World War and in June with Christopher McKnight Nichols, discussing his book Rethinking American Grand Strategy.

Protests in Perspective

Following the murder of George Floyd in May 2020, Carnegie Council organized a series of talks in conjunction with the Open Society University Network (OSUN) exploring the protests from global, historical, and ethical perspectives. Some of the leading voices on racial justice, human rights, and the history of protest movements tried to answer these questions: Why did the protests go global? Is this social movement like others in history or is it unique? What happens when protests end?

The five talks, taking place in the summer and fall of 2020, featured Patrick Gaspard, then-president of Open Society Foundations; The New School's Deva Woodley; Harvard Kennedy School's Erica Chenoweth; Emory University's Mary L. Dudziak; University of Wisconsin's Brenda Gayle Plummer; and more voices from the academic and activist communities.

The United Nations at Seventy-Five: Looking Back to Look Forward

For its Fall 2020 issue, Ethics & International Affairs published a special issue to mark the 75th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations. A collection of essays organized and guest-edited by Margaret P. Karns, "The United Nations at Seventy-Five: Looking Back to Look Forward," had authors reflect on how the organization has evolved over the decades and how well has it fulfilled and is it still fulfilling the high ideals of its Charter. To complement this special issue,

Ethics & International Affairs
The Journal of CARNEGIE COUNCIL

Karns and the EIA editors released four podcasts with select authors leading up to the anniversary of the signing of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in December 2020.

These four podcasts, all hosted by Karns, featured David M. Malone on the Security Council, the Sustainable Development Goals, peacekeeping, and the evolution of the UN; Maria Ivanova on the UN's efforts on climate change; Noleen Heyzer on the Beijing Women's Conference and gender issues in the UN system; and Bertrand Ramcharan on the UN system and human rights.

CNL

The mission of the CNL program is to cultivate the next generation of ethical global leaders in business, academia, government, and the non-profit sector.

Through Carnegie Council's public programming, exclusive social gatherings, and special events featuring prominent speakers, CNL gives young professionals the chance to connect with like-minded individuals from diverse sectors and backgrounds and to learn from a wide variety of experts.

In addition to their regular salons and virtual events, CNL also hosted virtual "Ethics in Leadership" symposiums in October 2020 and March 2021. These symposiums featured ethicist David Rodin, international economist Dambisa Moyo, Eurasia Group's Ian Bremmer, Harvard Kennedy School's Joseph Nye, Senior Fellow Anja Kaspersen, and others. The all-day events consisted of lectures and discussions on personal and professional development, and the importance of ethical leadership.

Global Ethics Day

The eighth annual Global Ethics Day was held on October 20, 2021, with over 170 organizations and institutions participating in 45 countries with a theme of "Ethics Empowered."

On Global Ethics Day, Carnegie Council hosted a live virtual panel and Q&A on October 20, titled "On the Frontlines of Democracy." Moderated by Jennifer Williams, deputy editor at Foreign Policy, the event featured panelists Nathan Law, Hong Kong democratic activist and former legislator; Alfredo Romero, president, Foro Penal; Wai Hnin Pwint Thon, senior advocacy officer, Burma Campaign UK; and Franak Viačorka, senior advisor to Sviatlana Tsikhanouskaya. Joel Rosenthal, president of Carnegie Council, introduced and closed the event with a special message for Global Ethics Day.

THANK YOU

TO OUR SUPPORTERS

We Can't Do It Without You!

Thanks to your ongoing generosity, Carnegie Council can provide independent and inclusive platforms for scholars, leaders, and decision-makers to explore the major challenges and moral imperatives confronting the world today. In supporting the Council, you are helping citizens across the globe to better understand and address these collective issues in reasoned, cooperative, and thoughtful ways. Your contribution—no matter how small—helps ensure that Carnegie Council can continue its public service of convening, publishing, providing expertise, and offering educational resources and opportunities free of charge to anyone, anywhere. Please help us continue this important work.

To support Carnegie Council, please visit our donation page at <https://www.carnegiecouncil.org/about/donate>, or email info@cceia.org.

CARNEGIE COUNCIL: ETHICS EMPOWERED

Carnegie Council for Ethics in International Affairs is an independent, research-driven nonprofit that works to empower ethics by identifying and addressing the most critical ethical issues of today and tomorrow. Founded by Andrew Carnegie over a century ago, we set the global ethical agenda and work for an ethical future by convening conversations, producing materials in a range of media, and sharing resources for education, impact, and awareness. We are the world's catalyst for ethical action.
